AMUSEMENTS.

That Quick Change in "Zenda."

The quick change made by Mr. Gould from the drunken King to Rudolf Rassendyll in the second act of "The Prisoner of Zenda" has puzzled many people. It appears to the auditor that ing is intoxicated and an effort is made to get him in the castle by Sapt and Fritz, but that wards and is placed on the floor in a stuper. In is at the door that the change is made. Mr Gould as the King staggers into the door and he runs quickly on out of the way, while a substitute, dressed identically the same, falls back into the arms of the King's officers. The change is so quick that it is not realized except by the shrewdest spectator at the time. Mr. Gould with e aid of two dressers is meanwhile changing appearance to that of the Englishman. He from which he makes his entrance. It is one of quickest and most deceptive changes ever nown in the history of the stage. There will two more performances of "The Prisoner of Zenda" at thet Grand -his afternoon and to-night. The company and production are all that

Miss Marie Dressler will make her vaudeville at Proctor's Pleasure ralace on Feb. 15.

The advance sales for Walker Whiteside's engagement at the Grand and "Superba's" three days at English's the last of next week will open Monday at the Pembroke. Both of these engagements will attract much attention.

In spite of the rain the little Ressows drove out yesterday noon in their tiny carriage. They will appear for the last times this afternoon and tonight at the Park. Besides the act of these remarkable midgets the vaudeville bill is a good one. On Monday "Town Topics" will start a game "A penny for your thought" was three days' engagement.

Mayor Strong, of New York, says the tendency of all the so-called vaudeville shows now running is distinctly immoral. If the police had found one show that was moral and proper in tone and character, he said, he might be inclined to look with favor on an application for license by a manager for a new vaudeville house

Up to the present the Irwin Brothers Burlesquers carry off the banner for big business at the Empire this season. The sale of seats for the remaining performances this afternoon and night indicate that those who delay securing seats will have to stand. Rose Sydell's London Beiles' Big Show will be the next offering at the Empire for one week commencing Monday matinee.

More than five hundred Mystic Shriners attended the performance at Weber & Fields's in New York one night this week and presented Mr. Weber and Mr. John T. Kelly with handsome jeweled badges of the order. As a special feature a burlesque initiation ceremony was introduced in "The Geezer" by Kelly and Fred Solomon, with Sam Bernard as the victim.

Della Fox made her first appearance on the stage at St. Louis when but seven years old in "Pinafore," shortly afterwards playing Editha in "Editha's Burglar" and the child in "A Celebrated Case" with James O'Neill. As the prima donna of the Bennett & Moulton Opera Company, when barely in her teens, she sang in "Fra Diavolo," "The Bohemian Girl," "The Pirates of Penzance" and other works, After a season with Heinrich Conried's Opera Company in "The King's Fool," Miss Fox joined De Wolf Hopper, playing the leading soubrette roles in "Castles in the Air." "Wang" and "Panjandrum." Two years ago last month she made her first appearance here as a star in "The Little Trooper." Since then she has not been in Indianapolis. Monday she reappears at the Grand in "Fleur-de-Lis," which will be repeated Tuesday. "The Little Trooper" will be sung Wednesday matinee and night.

THAT 'TRIANGLE' GROUND

A PERSISENT EFFORT TO SELL THE PLACE TO THE CITY.

How the Price Has Been Advanced on It-Street-Car Ordinances to Be Reported Favorably.

There has been a very persistent effort to sell to the city the square bounded by Kentucky and Senate avenues and Marystreet, on the ground needed for a market headquarters. At first it stated that the entire block could be bought for about $100,000, but later the price was sprung to $125,000. This is either an exorbitant price or the assessor has not done his duty in the assessment of the property. The total assessment of the block, including improvements, is $43,700.

Yesterday the Board of Works sent a letter to the City Council asking it to grant the board power to either buy or condemn the ground described, so it could be bought for market and fire purposes. It is claimed that this authority is asked merely to determine what the ground can be had for, although to a man up a tree it would seem that this could be determined within a reasonably close figure without asking for authority to buy the land.

This tract of land is owned by six different people. The point at Maryland street and Kentucky avenue is owned by John T. Ramsey and extends 149 feet on Maryland street and 179 on Kentucky avenue, and is assessed at $11,950. The 59 feet adjoining this on the west, except a small lot cut off, is owned by John B. Furnace, and is assessed at $6,100. The small lot cut off from this is owned by Anna E. Idler and is assessed at $1,400. Then comes the old hay market ground, extending from Maryland street to Kentucky avenue. This is owned by the heirs of Henry Bradley and has no improvements. It is assessed at $11,000. The south point, extending 116 feet on Senate avenue and 121 feet on Kentucky avenue. except a small lot 25x45 feet, is owned by John F. McKee and is assessed at $4,600. Bradley and is assessed at $900. The two lots north of this and fronting on Senate avenue are owned by J. L. Bradley and are assessed at $9,050. These two lots and the other small one owned by Mr. Bradley have been bought from M. A. McFarland since the talk came up about the city buying this block. The deeds show that he paid $18,237.91 for the property, while its total assessment is only $3,550. The law of this State provides that all property shall be assessed for taxation at its actual value, and it has been commonly supposed that the asnent in this city is fully 80 per cent. of the value of property. It is known that on residence property the assessment is it is hardly possible that this property can be actually worth twice as much as the taxes on a small home that when the city undertakes to buy property assessed at $43,700 a cash valuation of $75,000 would be a pretty high price to be paid. This would be averaging the assessment at 60 per cent. of the actual value portion of the block owned by the heirs of Henry Bradley was rented to the city for hay market at an annual rental of $900. There seemed to be a string tied to the land, for although other places were offered at less money, the board continued to not this place. Finally, after it seemed that the city could not get along without this place for a hay market, J. L. Bradley, the agent of the owners, notified the city that he would want $1,500 a year in the future. During this time the Board of Works pre eding the present one had been looking around for another site and accepted the offer of a place at the corner of Pine and Washington streets, at $300 a year. Since hat time an opposition market has been running on the old site and has caused the revenues of the city's hay market to fall #### off considerably. BIDS NEXT MONDAY.

Work of Cutting Down Courthouse Yard to Be Rushed.

The Board of Works and the County Commissioners yesterday signed a contract some time ago. The lease is effective from Jan. 1, 1897, and gives the use of the basement for six years from that date at $4,000 a year, with the privilege of extending the time to ten years.

Immediately after signing the lease, the commissioners ordered an advertisement the courthouse yard. The bids will be received next Monday at 10 o'clock and the successful bidders will be required to begin the work immediately. For the purpose of facilitating the work and to give as many men as possible employment, the work has been divided into six sections. bids will be received separately on each. The specifications require that all laborers employed by the contractors shall have been residents of this county for at least six months. The county treasurer has figured that there are 18,992 cubic yards of earth to be removed. This will become the property of the contractor, to dispose of as he may see fit. E. B. Martindale has offered 10 cents a load for all of it, if delivered on his property, near Fall creek. The clause giving the contractor all the dirt removed and requiring him to move everything he finds down to a certain level, may result in a gold mine for him. or it may be the reverse. There is a little uncertainty about this. It is supposed that in certain parts of the yard, where the stone that went into the building was handled and dressed, there may be found much stone of value, for after the building was erected, the lawn was simply filled in, covering all the rubbish that was left from the building. It may be that there is no valuable stone there, while the excavation may result as it did at the statehouse several years ago, when building stone of value was found.

STREET-CAR ORDINANCES.

Council Committee Will Report Favorably on Them.

The Council committee on public healtn met last night at the city clerk's office and from packing the cars. The ordinance requiring the company to heat its cars during the four winter months will be slightly amended, so that the season for heating cars will extend from the middle of November till the middle of March, instead of from Dec. 1 to April 1.

Drawing This Fireman's Pay.

Samuel V. Perrot and Patrick Gorman loaned John Allen, a fireman, $75 and since then have been drawing his warrants from the city. Yesterday Alten brought suit for an accounting. He says these men have drawn $340 of his money and have paid him $206. He demands $150 judgment and an accounting. Allen says he did not sign the order on which Perrott and Gorman have been drawing his money.

George Ketelehake Breaks His Ankle

The police were notified early this morning that a shooting affray had occurred at Alabama and Venmont streets. The sergeant and bicycle men went to the place and found George Ketelehake in his house with a broken ankle. He said that he had fired the shots into the air to attract the attention of passers-by. Ketelehake was intoxicated and had come home in a hack. As he stepped out of the gab he fell and broke his ankle. He thee began to shoot, and, according to a witness, the driver of the cab started up the street on a run and the team started in the opposite direction. The team stopped on the avenue and the driver recaptured it and drove to the city. The dispensary physicians, who were summoned, sent the man to the hospital. Dr. to the source of the story. Marsee was called and the lower part of the leg will have to be amputated.

George Thompson, the driver of the hack, was found this morning. He tells an entirely different story from any of the other witnesses. He says that he got Ketelehake at the Grand Opera House saloon and started to take him home. He was told that the number was 171 and when he stopped at that number Ketelehake got out and tried to start a quarrel. He then drove up farther and stopped near Massachusetts avenue. Ketelehake got out of the cab, acording to Thompson, and began to shoot at him. Thompson jumped from the box and got behind a tree. As soon as the re-volver was emptied the driver and a night watchman who happened by carried the man into his house and notified the police. Thompson says further that Ketelehake shot himself in the ankle instead of breaking it in a fall. The hospital physician failed to find bullet in the ankle. Thompson lives at 76 South Missouri street and drives for George

The court, by Judge Hackney, held that the evidence did not warrant the conclusion that Brown and Hackney were not trespassers, nor that at the time the fatal shot was fired either of them was in imminent peril. It held it to be a fair inference that in firing the shot the appellants believed Rippey to be another, but that if the act would have been murder, had the person shot been the one he was believed to be, the offense would not, by reason of such mistake, be reduced below the grade of murder. The conclusion is that the appellants have
